PRaise FOR LOCAL FOOD COMMISSION

Dr. H. E. Barnard Says Organization is Most Completed That Has Come to His Attention.

LETTER TO COUNTY AGENT COBB

Inquiries Have Been Received Concerning Plan of Furthering Movement in County.

That the Jackson Food Commission is one of the most complete and efficient organizations of its kind in Indiana, was the assertion of Dr. Harry E. Barnard, state drug commission, in a letter which has been received by County Agent Cobb. Dr. Barnard states that the list of officers and chairmen who have the work so well in hand has just been brought to his attention and he congratulates Mr. Cobb and the officers upon what they have already done to meet the threatened food shortage.

Dr. Barnard writes: "We have just received the list of committee chairmen of Jackson county that will push the production and conservation of foods. This is by far the most complete organization we have seen and you surely are to be congratulated."

Since the local food commission was organized many inquiries have been made of T. S. Blish, the president, and County Agent Cobb regarding the plan of conducting the work in this county. There is probably not another county in the state that has as an efficient organization as has this county. The various committees are giving personal attention to the departments in which they are placed in charge and through the co-operation splendid results are already in prospect. There has never been a time in the history of the county when all forces are working in such harmony for the successful

TAXES MAY BE PAID IN THIS CITY THREE DAYS NEXT WEEK

County Treasurer Belding Will Bring Books Here for Convenience of Property Owners.

County Treasurer John E. Belding has announced that he will be in Seymour Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week for the purpose of receiving taxes. Heretofore property owners in Seymour and this vicinity have been required to go to Brownstown to pay their taxes, but the county treasurer believes that it will be more convenient to bring the tax duplicates here for a few days and proposes to try out the plan. He will be found at one bank and may spend one day at each bank. He will give notice later where he can be found.

The plan which has been announced by Mr. Belding is the result of his recent visit here when he gave property owners an opportunity to find out the amount of their taxes for the current year. The number of inquiries exceeded all expectations and it was then that he determined to follow the same plan for the payment of taxes. The first Monday in May is the last day for the payment of the spring installment of taxes and after that date the penalty of ten percent. will be due.

MANY PLANNING TO ATTEND CORTLAND DEMONSTRATION

Seymour Band and Boy Scouts will Participate—Auto Parade to Form at 1 O'clock Friday.

It is expected that a large number of local people will attend the patriotic rally and flag raising at Cortland tomorrow. The town is making preparations to entertain a large crowd and a splendid program is arranged. Besides the rally and flag raising the school will have its closing exercises and the Jackson County Food Commission will have speakers to explain the purpose of the movement. An automobile parade is being arranged. All autos are to meet at the New Lynn Hotel at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Seymour Band will furnish music and the local company of Boy Scouts will attend.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS FOR PREPAREDNESS

Organization for Drilling and Training Purposes May be Effected Within a Few Days.

LADS ARE MUCH INTERESTED

School Board Will Discuss Plan at Next Meeting and is Expected to Sanction the Movement.

The military idea has secured a firm grip on the boys in the local high school. Their patriotism is genuine and they are in favor of any movement that will prepare them for more valuable service to their country. The suggestion was made to them that they organize for drilling and training purposes and they received the proposition with eager enthusiasm. The organization will likely be effected in the near future and specified hours after the regular classes adjourn will be devoted to "preparedness."

A. E. Murphy, supervisor of agriculture in the high school, and Serg. H. J. W. Webber, in charge of the local recruiting station for the regular army, have consented to give instructions in drilling and field tactics and the work promises to be very interesting as well as valuable. It is possible that if the organization is permanent that regular uniforms and probably guns can be procured from the government.

Before the organization is finally completed it will be discussed by the board of school trustees at their next meeting. It is thought that the members of the board are in favor of the organization as it will afford physical exercise for the lads at a time when they most need it. At the same time they will be given instructions in the foot movements and gun drills which would be invaluable to them if the time should come when they are called to the colors.

RENO DELIGHTS AUDIENCE WITH FEATS OF MAGIC

Special Number of Lyceum Course Given at Majestic—Season Shows Financial Loss.

Reno, the magician, with a program of clever feats of magic and illusion, entertained a fair sized audience at the Majestic theater last night in the special number of the lyceum course provided by the committee to help make up the deficit on the season's course. The proceeds of the evening, however, fell far short of the amount needed to balance the season's loss.

Prof. Reno gave a very enjoyable evening's entertainment, his tricks and his rapid fire of humorous comment keeping the audience in an uproar throughout the evening. The old tricks that are the stock in trade of every magician, were presented with many new features and in such a clever manner as to baffle the majority of the audience. Sharing honors with the professor in the evening's entertainment was "Henry", a local young man who showed great adaptability and ingenuity in helping Mr. Reno with his various stunts. "Henry" is having a hard time today trying to decide whether he would rather be a soldier and fight for his country or develop his natural talent for taking ducks and guinea pigs out of harmless looking hats and boxes.

The lyceum season that recently closed marks the fourth year that the present committee has had charge of the course, and was the final one to be conducted by this committee. During the four winters twenty of the best entertainments on the lyceum stage of the country have been brought to the city.

The Christian church has arranged for a course to be given next winter in the church.

PARTIAL EMBARGO ON CANS PROPOSED

Rider Packing Company With Other Indiana Packers Combat Restrictions Desired by American Co.

FEAR LOSS OF LARGE CROPS

Can Industry Says Restrictions Are Necessary to Conserve Limited Supply of Tin Plate.

The Rider Packing Company, of this city, is affiliated with other Indiana canning concerns in an effort to combat the proposed embargo of the American Can Company on tin cans except for perishable goods. The canners declare that if the restriction becomes effective they will be prevented from canning the usual output of beans, hominy, kraut and spaghetti which would practically mean the entire loss of next year's pack. They point out that such a condition would be especially serious this year when every effort is being exerted to conserve all food supplies to meet the threatened shortage during the fall and winter.

The canners held a conference in Indianapolis recently to discuss the proposed restrictions and a committee was appointed to represent the Indiana packers at a meeting of the central states packers in Chicago. Ivan C. Morgan, owner of a canning factory at Austin, was appointed as a member of the committee. The packers will again hold a meeting in Indianapolis tomorrow for further consideration of what appears to them to be a serious handicap not only to their business but to the food conservation movement.

The action of the American Can Company is said to be due to a shortage of tin plate and that the heavy demands for this product can only be met by reducing the sales wherever possible. It claims that if the supply of tin plate is used in the manufacture of cans to handle such crops as beans and kraut it will be unable to fill other orders which have been filed.

Packers estimate the value of the pack of pork and beans, kraut, kidney beans and spaghetti at approximately $50,000,000 and say that if this supply is taken from the market during the winter months, when the demand is the heaviest, a serious food shortage is inevitable. They point out that a large percentage of families in the United States depend entirely upon this pack for their supplies and do not eat beans, kraut, etc. They further claim that they have made contracts for large acreages of such crops and that if the supply of cans is now cut off much of the crop will be lost as it would be practically impossible for the individuals to use it in such quantities.

It has been suggested that if the restrictions desired by the American Can Company are enforced some other means of preserving the crop may be devised. Other materials beside tin are being used by some packers for various products, but it is conceded that difficulty will be experienced in finding a substitute for the packers.

SEED TO BE DISTRIBUTED AT LYNN ST. SCHOOL TOMORROW

Applicants Are Asked to Meet the Committee at 9:30—Good Meeting Yesterday.

The garden committee will be at the Lynn street school building tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock for the purpose of distributing seed to all who are unable to provide the same for themselves. All who desire seed are asked to call at the school at this hour and secure them.

More than one hundred back yard gardeners were in attendance at the meeting which the committee held yesterday afternoon at the school, and much interest was manifested in the movement to insure the gardening of every available plot of ground in this section of the city. Talks were made by A. E. Murphy and Mrs. J. F. Shiel, of the committee.

There are several vacant lots in the city, the ownership of which the committee has been unable to ascertain. It will be appreciated if the owners will communicate with them, especially in cases where they do not expect to put them in garden themselves.

POLICE DETERMINED TO ENFORCE DOG ORDINANCE

Declare that Owners Must Either Take Out License or Stand Prosecution.

The local police are determined to enforce the ordinance requiring owners to take out city licenses. Ample time has been given, they say, to procure the licenses and tags from the city clerk and that the time has come when prosecutions must be filed. The police are tabulating a list of all dog owners in the city and are provided with a list of those who have taken out licenses.

Chief of Police Wallace declares that it is unfair to require some owners to pay a license on their dogs and permit other owners to harbor canines without complying with the regulations adopted by the council. One arrest has been made, the defendant being Marion Monroe. He gave bond for his appearance in city court at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mayor Ross gave notice this afternoon that persons who have not bought licenses will be given until Saturday to either buy license at an extra cost of fifty cents or bring their dogs to the police station to be disposed of. Prosecutions will be filed after Saturday, the police say.

FRENCH CONTINUE TO SWEEP FORWARD

"Defend at Any Cost" is the Order That Has Been Given the German Defending Forces.

FORTIFICATIONS DESTROYED

Artillery Preparation Around St. Quentin Indicated to Mean Another Infantry Attack.

By United Press. Paris, April 19.—"Everywhere success," was reported in today's official statement telling of the sweep forward of the French armies.

The great German defensive positions dominating Nauroy were captured in the sweep east of Rheims, the statement said. Smashing blows gained more ground northeast of Soissons. All German counter attacks failed. Today there is fighting along almost the entire front.

Around St. Quentin great activity of artillery is reported. It may possibly forecast another tremendous infantry assault there which will sweep the town into French hands.

"Defend at any cost," is the word which has gone along the German front where the French are battering at their great offensive. What that cost has been, without stopping the French drive, was apparent in the heap of prisoners, in the heaps of Germans dead and in the demoralization of the defenders apparent everywhere.

The German plan seems to be to fill the first line of their defense with troops. The German earth work fortifications battered down by French guns are apparently being replaced by massed men. Into these masses of Germans the French fire is playing death with fearful certainty.

GERMANS IN THREE STATES IN BRAZIL HAVE REVOLTED

Government is Sending Strongest and Most Loyal Troops to Oppose the Rebels.

By United Press. Buenos Aires, April 19.—Brazil's great German population in at least three states has revolted. Dispatches today asserted the Teutons were well armed and supplied. The German population in the section where the revolutions apparently started has been estimated at 500,000. The government was said to be concentrating its strongest and most loyal troops to oppose the rebels. In the meantime Uruguay is massing its troops on the frontier, fearing invasion by the rebels.

FINAL CONFERENCES

To Settle Minor Differences on War Credit Bill.

By United Press. Washington, April 19.—Final conferences on the seven billion war loan bill to settle minor differences between the house and senate were under way this afternoon and it was probable it would be approved by tonight. Secretary McAdoo urged the legislation be finished today so the treasury department could start advertising tomorrow.

CONSCRIPTION IS BIG HOUSE ISSUE

President's Plan to Raise Great Army to be Fought Out on Floor of House.

REPORT BY MINORITY MEMBERS

Volunteer System Apparently is Favored in Preference to Selective Draft.

By United Press. Washington, April 19.—The President's plan to raise a great army by selective conscription will be fought out on the floor of the house. The house military committee today formally reported the army bill putting it up to the President to choose between conscription and volunteering.

Men supporting the President's conscriptive plan said they will deliver a minority report "which will show the country how politics and fear of defeat at the polls caused the majority to cast off responsibility."

The bill, which will be taken up Monday provides that all physically able males, between twenty-one and forty years are liable to conscription. There will be eighteen hours of general debate with further debate under the five-minute rule.

Senator McCumber introduced in the senate an amendment to the administration measure this afternoon proposing to raise the army needed by calling for volunteers proportionately from each voting district, a resort to draft is made possible only after the volunteer plan fails.

Senator Swanson reported the bill authorizing the requested increase in the marine corps of from 17,000 to 30,000 and increase in the navy personal from 87,000 to 150,000.

Both bills are expected to pass quickly. The fight in the senate against the administration's proposed drastic newspaper censorship regulations continued. Opponents declared that if the bill is unchanged, "it would make the press of the nation the virtual tool of the government."

"SLACKERS" CANNOT ESCAPE UNDER DEPARTMENT RULING

Men Who Have Married Since War Was Declared Are Liable to Military Service.

By United Press. Washington, April 19.—Men who dodge military service by marrying will not escape under a ruling by the war department today. "All men married since the outbreak of the war will be treated upon the same basis as unmarried men insofar as their military obligations are concerned," the department announced officially.

SPIES BELIEVED TO BE AT WORK IN CAPITOL

Door of Naval Affairs Committee Room Broken Open but Nothing is Found Missing.

By United Press. Washington, April 19.—The door of the naval affairs committee room in the capitol building was broken open during the night. Police believe it was the work of spies seeking information of naval plans. As far as could be ascertained nothing was missing. During the night the capitol building is heavily guarded. Police say they believe the work was done by someone hidden in the building.

NATIONAL DEFENSE COUNCIL URGES PROHIBITION IN U. S.

President May Issue Executive Proclamation or Ask for Emergency Legislation.

By United Press. Washington, April 19.—The council of national defense will recommend that the President take drastic action at once to stop the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor throughout the United States. It remains to be determined whether the President will be urged to stop liquor manufacture and sale through executive proclamation or through emergency legislation.

in a number of Indiana high schools has already been effected and is in line with the universal military training bill which is almost certain to pass congress at the present session. One provision of the bill is that every youth must complete the military training course and if he can do this within six months' time there will be no necessity of them remaining in the training camp for eleven months. Such drilling as would be given to the members of the proposed organization here would prepare them for the compulsory training and might mean that a large percent. of the boys would not be required to spend the entire eleven months the first year in camp.

It is known that the parents of many of the boys favor the organization as they believe that it will save their sons from spending the maximum period in training after the universal bill becomes a law. It is also pointed out that regular military training is just what a growing boy needs to make him a strong, healthy young man. It gives him confidence and self-poise that every young man desires and the training fits him in a physical way to undertake greater things after he reaches his majority.

White, U. S. Shipping Board; James Wilson, former secretary of agriculture. You should watch this column every day. Any questions should be written on one side of the paper and sent to the Garden Editor of the Republican.

LETTUCE AND RADISHES.

Lettuce and radishes should be among the first crops planted in the home garden, says the National Emergency Food Garden Commission which is co-operating with this newspaper in urging food garden planting as a war measure.

As soon as the hard freezes over and the ground can be worked, both crops can be set out immediately. Neither crop does well in hot weather, but both thrive in the cool of spring and autumn.

The usual method of planting lettuce is to scatter the seed broadcast as grass seed is sown and the picking the leaves singly when they are large enough for use.

A better method, however, is to plant head lettuce in rows, sowing the seed abundantly, but when the plants come up thinning them out until they are six inches or more apart. The rows can be as close together as one foot. The entire head, like a cabbage, is then cut for the kitchen.

Because lettuce does not withstand heat well, for crisp leaves in the summer you must provide shade for the plants. This can be done by setting planks on edge along the south sides of the rows.

For head lettuce a half ounce of seed will plant 160 feet of row. The seed should be planted in drills (trenches) half an inch deep.

The faster radishes grow the better they are in flavor. Most varieties are rapid in growth, some being ready for use in two to three weeks after the seed is planted. To facilitate quick the soil should be light and thoroughly prepared for them. Because of their rapid maturity it is well not to plant the whole bed at once, but to make successive plantings every ten days or two weeks.

An ounce of radish seed will plant a row 100 feet long. Most radish seed are fertile, so that they can be planted at about the distance apart the plants should be in the row, thus avoiding thinning. This distance in the row may be at short as one inch. The seed should be planted a half inch deep, and in a small garden the rows ought not to be over one foot apart.

ROSES

Pruning Climbing Roses.

Prepared by the U. S. department of agriculture.

SPECIAL pruning methods must be employed for climbing roses. These methods are determined by more or less of a compromise between the desire, on the one hand, to force the growth of blossom bearing new wood by removing old wood and, on the other hand, the desire to keep arbors and similar structures at least partially covered. One-half of the wood should be pruned from all the climbers, as from the other types of rose, at planting time. In the case of the established plants the wicker-raiana and hardy climbing roses should be pruned just after blooming. At this time young shoots will have started from the roots. The growth of these shoots should be encouraged, as it is from them that most of the branches are produced that bear the following year's bloom. The best way is to remove all the old wood at this time so that all the strength will go into the young shoots. Where the roses are trained over a trellis so high that one season's growth will not cover it the method just described is not practicable. In such cases some of the old shoots should be cut off at the ground and the others should be shortened from three to six feet, depending on the amount of growth the vine has been making each year. New shoots should be trained to take the place of those removed. It should be kept constantly in mind that the present year's growth bears next year's flowering branches and that a few vigorous branches are more desirable than many weak ones.

DOES RHEUMATISM BOTHER YOU?

Many Doctors Use Musterole

So many sufferers have found relief in Musterole that you ought to buy a small jar and try it.

Just spread it on with the fingers. Rub it in. First you feel a gentle glow, then a delicious, cooling comfort. Musterole routs the twinges, loosens up stiffened joints and muscles.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It penetrates to the seat of pain and drives it away, but does not blister the tenderest skin. It takes the place of the mussy, old fashioned mustard plaster.

Musterole is recommended for bronchitis, croup, asthma, pleurisy, lumbago, neuralgia, sprains, bruises, stiff neck, headache and colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

RUSSIA TO STAND WITH HER ALLIES

Provisional Government Turns Deaf

Ear to Overtures of Germany and Austria.

VIEW OF THE SOCIALISTS

They Insist That Democracies Shall be Established in the Teutonic Countries.

Washington, April 19—Assurance has reached Washington that under no conditions that are now conceivable will the provisional government of Russia yield to the overtures from German and Austrian Socialists representatives to negotiate a separate peace.

The Entente Embassies, with this assurance before them, frankly confessed the great sense of relief they felt from the apprehension under which they have labored for the last two weeks, that the extreme Socialistic elements have so far dominated the Provisional Government through soldiers' and workmen's committees as seriously to jeopardize the integrity of the Entente alliance.

The gathering of Socialists at Stockholm, known to be fomented by Germans and Austrians, was looked upon with dread and suspicion, and it was feared that cunning appeals to the altruistic principles of Socialism, the universal brotherhood of workingmen and such considerations might force the Provisional Government to consent to a separate peace to terminate the war.

It is now learned from an authoritative source that these apprehensions and misgivings were based upon misunderstanding of the aims of the extreme Socialistic element in Russia and of the real strength of the Provisional Government.

The information is to the effect that so far from contemplating any peace on the basis of existing Governments, the advanced Russian Socialists want to carry their democratizing ideas by force into the enemy's countries, and to appeal to their brother Socialists in Austria and Germany to rise in revolt, overturn the monarchies and establish true Socialistic republics in their places.

This movement is reported to be gathering strength rapidly in Russia among the soldiers and workmen. The former are falling into line again to renew the campaign in the East, and the workmen are going back to their shops to turn out shot and shell and powder on the greatest possible scale. From every quarter comes assurances of support for the Provisional Government.

ELIMINATION OF GERMAN FROM SCHOOLS DISCUSSED

Central Indiana Superintendents' Association Takes up Question at Session.

By United Press.

Shelbyville, April 19—Action on whether or not the teaching of German in the public schools of Indiana should be abolished during the war was scheduled to be taken at the annual meeting of the Central Indiana Superintendents' Association here today. The action which is taken will undoubtedly have an influence on the attitude of school officials throughout the state on this question.

Some discussion has been heard in several parts of the state, especially Terre Haute, regarding the elimination of German from the schools.

Military training in high schools and steps which schools could take to aid in the food preparedness movement in the state were also taken up.

Captain Paul Jones

Of all human things nothing is more honorable or more excellent than to deserve well of one's country.—Cicero.

History pages do not relate any more heroic or thrilling story than that of the triumph won against great odds by Capt. Paul Jones, in whose veins, although not an American but a Scotchman, there flowed blood staunch and true to the American cause of liberty. While off the coast of Scotland with the Bonhomme Richard and the Alliance and the Pallas he was swooped down upon by the flotilla under Captain Pearson which was conveying a merchant fleet. Jones prepared to meet the enemy as best he could. The British guns had long range and Paul Jones determined to fight close. He brought his ships up to the enemy until the muzzles of his guns came in contact with the enemy ships. Then ensued one of the most frenzied conflicts in the history of naval battles, continuing from seven to ten in the evening. Paul Jones' position was desperate in the extreme. His ship was so shattered that only three guns remained effective, and he then assailed the enemy with hand grenades which falling into the Serapis soon set her on fire. At length her magazine blew up killing all near it. Pearson commanded his officers who wanted to surrender to board the Richard which was also now ablaze in several places. But Jones and his men received them so warmly that they retreated. Pearson's crew was killed, his guns unmounted and his ship on fire and there was nothing else to do but surrender.

THE SWORD OF WASHINGTON

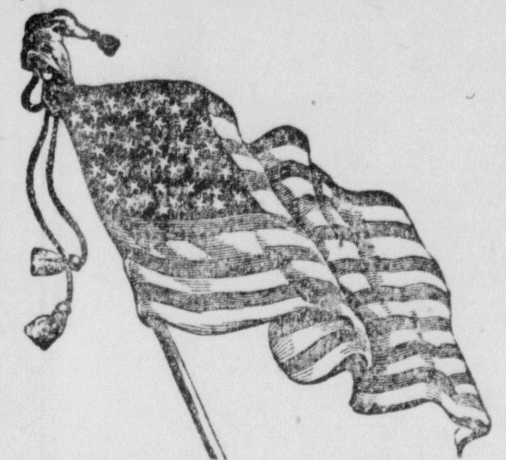

The sword of Washington. The staff of Franklin. Oh, sir, what associations are linked with these names! Washington—whose sword, as my friend has said, was never drawn but in the cause of his country, and never sheathed when wielded in his country's cause. Franklin—the philosopher of the thunderbolt, the printing press, and the plow share.—John Quincy Adams.

To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.—Washington.

This nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.—Lincoln.

HERE'S TO OLD GLORY, GOD BLESS HER!

If anyone attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot.—John A. Dix.

O folds of white and scarlet! O blue field with your silver stars! May fond eyes welcome you, willing feet follow you, strong hands defend you, warm hearts cherish you, and dying lips give you their blessing! Ours by inheritance, ours by allegiance, ours by affection—long may you float on the free winds of heaven, the emblem of liberty, the hope of the world!—Anon.

DYING FOR ONE'S COUNTRY

"Death Never Comes Too Soon, If Necessary in Defense of Our Country."—Story.

It was Nathan Hale who said, "I regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." And it is Horace that makes one of his heroes say: "It is sweet and glorious to die for one's country." There have been many and striking illustrations of this in our country's history. It is said that the untimely fate of Col. Owen Roberts, who fell at Stono, was cause of universal regret. He was an inflexible patriot, an excellent disciplinarian, and enthusiast in pursuit of military fame. His son, who was in the action, hearing of his misfortune, hastened to him. The expiring veteran perceiving in his countenance the liveliest sorrow, addressed him with great composure: "I rejoice, my boy, once again to see and to embrace you. Receive this sword, which has never been tarnished by dishonor, and let it not be inactive while the liberty of our country is endangered. Take my last adieu, accept my blessings, and return to your duty."

Two Ford automobiles driven by Dr. R. G. Haas and George Mascher collided at the corner of Second and Chestnut streets Wednesday night. The crash occurred just after an interurban car had rounded the corner and neither machine was moving rapidly. Both machines were slightly damaged.

Although the great majority of automobile owners have purchased license plates for the current year, a few machines are seen without the new licenses exhibited. The police think that plenty of time has been given for all owners to buy licenses as required by the state law and will give the matter their attention.

THE COUNTRY STORE

Has experienced the largest business the past week in the history of our store. Saturday sales exceeded any one day's sales since we opened our store here—in fact we could not find time to change our advertisement last week and we are not saying this to boast, but we feel that it is our duty to tell the people just what we are doing and if necessary we will show our books to prove the statement. This is only brought about by people having confidence in the store and our prices being right at all times,—give us your next order and rest assured you can do better, for I am constantly scouring the different City markets for real bargains for my customers. Most all prices are firm and higher, we look for still higher prices before the week is over and these prices are subject to change any day this week, so we advise BUYING AT ONCE.

prosecution of a single purpose. The farmers are mobilized as never before to bring about bigger production of corn and other crops and the city people are doing their share by gardening and aiding all departments.

As a result of the present movements greater demands are made upon the county agent's department for assistance and advice and a larger number of farmers are taking advantage of the opportunities available. Intensive farming is being promoted so that larger crops can be grown upon the same acreage.

County Agent Cobb said today that in this county it was not necessary to have larger acreage but to bring the present acreage up to its most productive capacity. He said that the average corn yield is thirty-five bushels an acre and that this could easily be increased ten bushels per acre which in the aggregate would mean thousands of bushels of grain.

Township meetings are being conducted all over the county and the interest has been commendable. T. S. Blish and A. H. Ahlbrand spoke at a meeting at Crothersville Wednesday night at which a large audience was present.

THE DREAM GARDEN

The Garden. When we say those two words what picture is formed in our mind? Do we see a plot of ground just at the edge of the back steps all ragged and rough with vegetables planted in irregular rows and allowed to become overgrown with weeds, or do we think of acres and acres of terraced slopes thickly planted with trees and shrubs, and the flowers that our grandmothers loved the best? The gardens we see nowadays are exquisite in their pretentiousness, and superb works in the art of the landscape gardener; but what could be more exquisite than the rambling paths, the fern-grown nooks, or more superb than the beds of larkspur, violets, roses and valley lilies that graced the gardens of a half century ago?

We see all these things that would make a garden so charming going to waste, so if you are not very busy, let's rest awhile and plan a dream garden. All of us who spend the summer months cooped up in a hot dusty city have spent many a sleepless night trying to picture a little cottage away off in the cool somewhere, and very often we have succeeded. Let's tell about it now; shall I start first? But I'm afraid I'll get so rapt up in my dream that I'll never think of the time and you will have to postpone your story until sometime later. We-e-l-l if you insist, I will. But if it's too long you must promise to interrupt me.

Let us give the garden character. A garden really expresses the character of the one who plans it, so we will try and have ours as charming as possible. They so often resemble real, alive persons that we will liken ours to people we know. There is the garden with stately statues, artistic fountains and formal drives. It's really very much like a middle aged society woman, dignified, possessing affected graces of attraction, displaying all her pomp and power on the surface. But her true character is as hidden as the land where the statues and fountains rest and where the neatly trimmed shrubs and evergreens cover the stately curves of the original tree. But then there is another kind of a garden which has been planned by nature and cultivated through generations of calms and storms. We will liken this to a little old lady, with deep blue eyes, curling silvery hair and a voice as sweet as the birds that sing in her garden. You see she has a garden, this little grey lady, and we will pay her a short visit and maybe if she likes us she will take us through.

When we started out on this trip we were really very thoughtful. Had we come in our automobiles, we might have offended the little grey friend, for she is not very fond of these modern ideas, but clings to a favorite old plodding horse. But since we've walked most of the way, and are getting rather weary, perhaps she will invite us in and let us visit awhile with her as we planned. She has a tempting big rambling veranda, too, where we can rest, with soft, comfortable chairs, and with the loveliest view imaginable. Just at the top of a hill, you know, where you can see miles and miles. But here we are and I'll let you judge for yourself. Doesn't the lane wind gracefully around the hill, breaking right through that cluster of sugar maples? The wild flowers too are pretty. See, at the sides are patches of spring beauties and butter cups. We had better not stop and pick them now for the little grey lady has seen us coming and she may be impatient to discover the identity of her guests. Remember, we must not offend her in any way or we'll never see her mysterious garden and that is really what we came for. Mustn't forget that.

I knew you would love her, she is so sweet and friendly. I just told you to be careful not to offend her to make the surprise all the greater for she is as proud as a punch over that garden of hers, and would show it to a tramp if he acted in any way interested. What did you think of it anyway? When we first started out on our trip, as she took us through her quaint little cottage, that perches at the very tip top of the hill, we all agreed that she must have had an eye for art when she discarded the thought of the modern bungalow, and selected a cozy little cottage of red brick, all overgrown with ivy. But the cottage, inviting as it may be, was only the beginning. On the west slope of the hill runs a narrow tinkling stream as clear as a crystal. Along the banks, grow calamus plants in thick clusters adding their aromatic odor to that of the catnip and peppermint. We could imagine

Crepe Gown With Tunic

This is an afternoon gown to provoke a sigh of longing in every woman's heart. It is made of crepe meteor and georgette and has a long, gracefully draped tunic, plaited in at the waistline. In the bodice the side bodies and sleeves are of georgette, with an emplacement at the back and front of crepe meteor and suspending of this material. Rounded tabs at each side merely suggest pockets but really serve to display a handsome pattern in silk embroidery, introducing beads in the design.

the time when the little grey lady's charm. All of these very small children were young how they would patches put together wouldn't make wade in the stream and eat the tender roots of the calamus. It was of space all of the flowers she loved good for their stomachs too. The best were there. Jonquils, narcissus, for-get-me-nots, mignonette, when they all had the measles, told and English violets were all included. She picked each of us a bouquet, her objections and let them eat to mixing all the varieties together. A florist would have scorned her attempts in arranging a corsage but not so her guests. We were all so delighted to have something to remember our quaint little friend by, and these were exactly like her. Do you see what we mean? In planting and cultivating her flowers she had put her own personality into them and she was giving it to us. We were more than glad, let me tell you. Just at the outer edge of the patches stood an old fashioned well covered with wild clematis vines. We wandered toward it to refresh ourselves after the long tramp. The water was as fresh as that from a spring. Cool, clear and altogether delicious. We could see that it was getting rather close to evening, so rejecting the little grey lady's invitation to stay to tea, wandered toward the remaining corner before returning to the city. The stream that we were shown as we first started out, ran along the west side of the house, curving to the north and winding on toward the river. At the foot of the hill in front of the house, was a little wooden bridge crossing the stream and it was toward this we directed our steps. To say the least the bridge was rather rickety but this only added to its picturesque-ness. The tall foliage of cat-tail plants grew closely to the sides and on the surface of the water were the boat-shaped leaves of water lilies. Bluebells and iris too were growing here in profusion. We stood awhile on this beautiful spot and looked around us. The setting sun cast a deep glow over the water, changing as we looked from a rose to violet and deep green. Talk about your

Utmost Refinement in Summer Blouse

Just as we conclude that there is nothing new that can possibly happen to summer blouses, along comes an attractive surprise and we are forced to concede that another beautiful novelty has made its appearance. There are inexhaustible reservoirs of ideas, it seems, that designers know how to draw upon to provide us with that variety which is the spice of life and blouses. Here is a new, mid-summer model. The made of fine cotton voile, embellished with French tucks. It is cut after the usual manner of blouses, its seams are hemstitched, sleeves plain and roomy and, so far, all the details of its construction are all like tried old friends with whom we have long been put on in the same way as that familiar. But just at this point the creator of this blouse thought of adding an organdie collar and cuffs banded and sometimes of two laces, made of a fine organdie edging, and They are usually smaller. The high of shaping the collar in a new way, roll at the back and the partially Furthermore, the dainty embroidered closed but cool looking throat opening is a piece of fine management.

How to Cook Husbands

Many husbands are utterly spoiled by mismanagement in cooking and so are not tender and good. Some women keep them constantly in hot water, others freeze them by carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew by imitating ways and words, others roast them and keep them in a pickle all of their lives. It cannot be supposed that any husband will be tender and good, managed this way. But they are really delicious when properly treated.

In selecting your husband you should not be guided by the silvery appearance as in buying mackerel, nor in the golden tint as if you wanted salmon. Be sure to select him yourself as tastes differ. Do not go to the market for him—at the best always come to the door. It is far better to have none unless you learn patiently how to cook him. A preserving kettle of finest porcelain is best but an earthen pipkin will do, with care. See that the linen in which you wrap him is nicely washed and mended with the required number of buttons and strings neatly sewed on. Tie him in the kettle by a silken cord called comfort, as the one called duty is apt to be weak. He is apt to fly out of the kettle and be burned since like crabs and lobsters you have to cook him while alive. Make a clear steady fire out of love, neatness and cheerfulness. Set him as near this as seems to agree with him. If he sputters and fizzes do not be anxious about him as some husbands do this until they are quite done.

If thus treated you will find him very digestible, agreeing nicely with you and the children, and will keep as long as you wish, unless you become careless and put him in too cold a place.—Mrs. A. Love.

FAVORITE RECIPES

Most of the talk we hear nowadays is about equally divided between discussions of the war and the high cost of living getting higher and higher. These discussions on the now famous H. C. of L. seem to be centered around the Irish potato. When we pause to think that less than twelve months ago a peck of potatoes cost just twenty-five cents and now are demanding a price of eighty-five cents, we can readily understand this interest. An increase of fifty-five cents in so short a time is rather startling.

Potatoes are, however, one of the best of starch foods and while the expenditure for one peck (for we hardly ever feel that we can buy more) is seemingly great, the amount of food value contained in one potato compares very favorably with that of one egg or the same amount of meat. They may be cooked in various ways so that the members of the family do not grow tired of them and in this way receive the most of the food value available.

BAKED POTATOES

This is considered the most perfect way of cooking the potato. They should be thoroughly scrubbed and washed as the least bit of earth remaining on the potato will taste after it has been cooked. For baking, potatoes of uniform size should be selected in order that they may all be done at the same time. Place in a hot oven and bake about three quarters of an hour. When done break the skin and allow the steam to escape, then serve at once.

DUCHESS POTATOES

Use a pint of hot riced potatoes. Add one tablespoon butter, salt to taste, the well-beaten yolks of three eggs, and enough hot cream to make the mixture pass easily through a forcing bag with tube attached. Arrange in any manner desired. Brush top with egg and milk and then place in a hot oven to brown.

POTATO CROQUETTES

Two cups riced potatoes, 2 table-spoons butter, 1 egg, onion juice, cayenne, parsley, salt and pepper. Mix ingredients and beat thoroughly. Shape, dip in crumbs, then egg and back to crumbs. Fry in deep fat to a golden brown, then drain on paper, garnish with parsley and serve.

POTATO ROSES

Use duchess potato mixture and forcing-bag. Hold bag in an upright position, tube pointing down; force out potato to form a rose. Raise quickly to break the flow. Shape these on a thin sheet, brush with egg and milk and brown in the oven. Remove with spatula or broad-bladed knife. These may be served as separate dish garnished with watercress or they may be served around a platter of fish or roast.

POTATOES O'BRIEN

Fry three cups of potato cubes in deep fat and drain on paper. Cook one tablespoon onion in butter for two or three minutes, skim out the onion and add three pimentoes to butter. Cut pimentoes in small pieces and when quite hot add to the potato cubes. Mix well and serve.

MILL CREEK POTATOES IN CREAM

Use small potatoes, cut into eighths lengthwise. Soak in ice water for one hour. Remove, dry and fry in deep fat. Do not have fat too hot as the potato must cook as well as brown. Sprinkle with salt and serve.

GREEK POTATOES IN CREAM

Wash, pare and cut potatoes into pieces not larger than peas. Parboil in salted water for three or four minutes; drain and put aside where they will keep hot. To each quart use a pint of cream made into a thin white sauce. Pour over potatoes, mix thoroughly and turn into double boiler. Pour one half cup of cream on top of potatoes and place them on the back of the stove where they will cook slowly for three hours. Serve with steak or chops or as a creamed potato.

DELMONICO ESCALLOPED POTATOES

Cut potatoes in very small cubes. Parboil in salted water for about four minutes, drain and mix with a pint of thin white sauce, to which one teaspoon grated onion or onion juice has been added. Mix well and season to taste. Turn into a well buttered dish, cover securely, and bake until sauce is almost absorbed, but do not have the oven hot enough to brown. Shortly before serving sprinkle the top with one cup grated cream cheese and buttered crumbs. Brown in oven and serve.

HASHED BROWNED POTATOES

Chop five or six cold boiled potatoes very fine, season with salt and pepper. Put into a frying-pan one fourth cup fat; when hot, put in the potatoes and heat quickly. Shape like omelet by pressing to one side of pan. When well browned drain off the fat and turn onto serving dish.

Two Hats for Little Heads

All sorts of pretty hats for little heads that have attained the wisdom of three years or more are now tempting money from the pockets of mothers. There is considerable variety in shapes, but they do not differ much.

In millinery for misses, as in that for grownups, fine workmanship is a style feature of the season. In the hat at the top of the picture, narrow braid is sewed to a soft foundation. It is trimmed with a sash of velvet ribbon, hand embroidered in silk.

The other hat is of lace braid, threaded with velvet baby ribbon, and lined with chiffon. A cluster of four tiny apples at the front suggests the youth of summer.

THE WOMAN RARE

Ethel Leginska, the famous pianist has declared that women will never achieve real greatness until they learn to give less attention to clothes and more to the things they profess interest in. And moreover Ethel Leginska is living up to her uncompromising remarks. Long before Mrs. Vernon Castle established the fad of wearing the hair Dutch bobbed Miss Leginska had adopted the fashion, not because it made her severe Russian face look less severe or because pianists often fancy a striking hair dress, but because it was a mode that was always convenient without the bother of eternally scheming for other novel and becoming ways of dressing it.

In her clothes as well as her hair dress Miss Leginska has adopted practically a uniform consisting of a tailored suit and a plain sailor hat. It is her opinion that men wear a uniform and accomplish "real" things so that women who have ambitions to achieve must follow in their footsteps. She has discarded the evening dress and now appears before the public in a blouse and skirt in shades of brown, dark blue and black.

How many women and girls agree with her? Many acknowledge that the time and money that is devoted to the purchase of each season's complete outfit is "outrageous," a "disgrace" and many other attractive non de plumes but even those same women dream over Harper's and Elite a rather startling number of hours out of the twenty-four. And what is more to the point, they are not really happy unless they are enjoying this fashion feast.

Then, too, the displays shown in the shop windows will make many a person who is determined not to even glance at the suit that she has been had ceased to grieve, to rub her eyes with her paws, to whine for the sunlight, the golden moon and the stars. Slowly she began to forget that she had ever seen those things. She could not run more swiftly at Kazan's flank. Scent and hearing had become wonderfully keen. She could wind a caribou two miles distant, and the presence of man she could pick up at an even greater distance. On a still night she had heard the splash of a trout half a mile away. And as these two things—scent and hearing—became more and more developed in her, those same senses became less active in Kazan.

He began to depend upon Gray Wolf. She would point out the hiding place of a partridge fifty yards from their trail. In their hunts she became the leader—until game was found. And as Kazan learned to trust to her in the hunt, so he began just as instinctively to heed her warnings. If Gray Wolf reasoned, it was to the effect that without Kazan she would die. She had tried hard now and then to catch a partridge or a rabbit, but she had always failed. Kazan meant life to her. And if she reasoned—it was to make herself indispensable to her mate.

It was her habit, spring, summer and winter, to snuggle close to Kazan and lie with her beautiful head resting on his neck or back. If Kazan snarled at her she did not snap back, but slunk down as though struck a blow. With her warm tongue she would lick the long hair between Kazan's toes. For days after he had run a silver in his paw she nursed his foot. Blindness had made Kazan absolutely necessary to her existence—and now, in a different way, she became more and more necessary to Kazan. They were happy in their swamp home. There was plenty of small game about them. Rarely did they go beyond the limits of the swamp to hunt.

One day they struck farther than usual to the west. They left the swamp, crossed a plain over which a fire had swept the preceding year, climbed a ridge, and descended into a second plain. At the bottom Gray Wolf stopped and sniffed the air. At these times Kazan always watched her, waiting eagerly and nervously if the scent was too faint for him to catch. But today he caught the edge of it, and he knew why Gray Wolf's ears flattened, and her hindquarters drooped. The scent of game would have made her rigid and alert. But it was not the game smell. It was human, and Gray Wolf slunk behind Kazan and whined. For several minutes they stood without moving or making a sound, and then Kazan led the way on.

Less than three hundred yards away they came to a thick clump of scrub spruce, and almost ran into a tepee. It was abandoned. Life and fire had not been there for a long time. But from the tepee had come the man-smell. With legs rigid and his spine quivering, Kazan approached the opening to the tepee. He looked in. In the middle of the tepee, lying on the charred embers of a fire, lay a ragged blanket—and in the blanket was wrapped the body of a little Indian child. Kazan could see the tiny moccasined feet. But so long had death been there that he could scarcely smell the presence of it. They slunk away, their ears flattened and their tails drooping, and did not stop until they reached their swamp home. Even there Gray Wolf still sniffed the horror and her muscles twitched and shivered as she lay close at Kazan's side.

A CAPABLE POWERFUL CAR

Performance! Quick, vigorous pick-up. Smooth pulling power. Flexibility. Again and again has the Detroit Electric proved itself possessed of an unusual measure of these keynote characteristics of the ideal motor car.

It carried a full passenger load to the top of Pike's Peak. It performed with ease on the steep hills of Ithaca, New York, in a series of hill-climbing tests conducted there. In Kansas City it is daily matching the performance of the costly multi-cylinder cars on the hardest hills.

Best of all, Detroit Electric performance is invariable in its quality. From day to day, month to month, season to season, it maintains its smooth power-flow, its swift pick-up, its rare flexibility. Its mechanism is so simple there's nothing to need constant attention, nothing to be continually "tuned up". Repairs and replacements are of rarest occurrence. It is a staunch, able car.

And yet it handles easily, is simple to operate, can be driven by any member of the family with equal dexterity. So it is an all-family car as well as an all-year car. And low indeed is its upkeep cost compared to any other car of equal size and power. Prices $1775 to $2375, f. o. b. Detroit.

The Spring Fever of Fashion Also Is With Us

By Margaret Mason
(Written for the United Press)
All hail gentle Spring!

This is the joyous season of the year when the amorous robins and the bluebirds through happiness wake you at five a. m., as they burble under the window sill. These are the nights when you toss off the extra counterpane and wake in the morn with a cold in the head and an extra counter pain in your chest.

These are the happy days when the Amalgamated Union of Janitors turn off the heat prematurely and you have to affect the cumbersome draperies of your eiderdown bathrobe on top of your customary garments around the frostbitten menage.

These are the pleasant mealtimes when you struggle with the offspring to get them to consume sufficient quantities of rhubarb sauce, spinach, dandelion greens and other healthful first fruits of spring against which their childish souls and tummies revolt. Being off-spring perhaps accounts for their being "off" spring vegetables.

These are the intoxicating afternoons when the shop windows get full of all the fascinating grills and furbelows, and frivolities that go to female heads. The little birds are on the wing and the little wings are on the hat. If only the spring bonnets knew how to use their many wings they would certainly fly away a la the little birds. As it is it is only their prices that soar. Truly, fine feather make fine hats this spring for almost every tuban, poke, mushroom, sailor and stove-pipe shape that isn't beaded is abristle with wings. Some of them are both beaded and winged at that.

Hats aren't the only things in the shop windows that go to the female heads however, as there are the stunning Spanish back combs of tortoise shell, amber, demi-amber and carved jet. Wonderfully artistic and alluring they are and every woman is immediately bitten with a desire to possess one as soon as she tries their teeth in her topknot.

Like Dutchmen's breeches, violet, dogwood and all the spring flowers, the fashionable growths in the spring shop windows are prone to have as ephemeral an experience. They enjoy a brief popularity and then vanish like the crocus, to be glimpsed no more this year.

I am wondering if the exuberant new waistcoats of rainbow hued jersey silk are doomed to so fickle a fling. Most amazingly colored are they in broad Roman stripes of orange, emerald green, purple and scarlet. They are stunning for wear with the new sport coats of velvet that are press agented as successors to the ubiquitous sweaters.

I rather fear the existence of the divers hued waistcoats will be fleeting, however, since all of their colors are guaranteed fast. Speaking of brilliant colors, we are due to have a perfect riot of them on hands this spring if we are to judge by the way the glove fingers point. Talk about handpainted; well our hands will certainly look painted when they don the new sport gloves. Their lower sides are of wash kid in the most hectic of hues and their backs are of glove silk in equally hectic matching tint or a contrasting tone. They will look handpainted if they don't look as if something had dyed on our hands. Royal palms may well be dubbed the hands that are covered with the royal purple gloves with orange silk backs. Verdant palms will be those of emerald green backed with Chinese blue. White gloves with black silk backs and vice versa are especially smart in these days when black and white is such a winning combination, but the bright colors run pretty close for favor. When the kid underpart of the glove is in the same brilliant color as the silk back instead of being a contrast the stitching on the back in an off color relieves the monotony.

Just fancy a group of foreign born charmers at the polo match, the golf club or the race course indulging in an animated conversation in which hand gesticulation plays such an important part. Thus gloved their waving palms are bound to have all the colorful and shifting effects of a kaleidoscope.

came to the place where the footpath meets the lane. Here we bid our hostess farewell and started back to the city. Twilight gradually settled over the slopes and ravine. The colors faded, objects grew indistinct, and the heavy scent of evening dew rose with the night. As we turned back to look at the garden that had brought so much to us in the last short hour, we saw the little grey lady resting on her veranda. Later as we thought of her, we could see the moon come up and bathe the peaceful dwelling in its pale gold, hear the hoot of the owls and the voices of the night calling faint echoes from the hills to keep her company. I am content with my dream.

wanting or the hat that would look ideal with the suit, give a long lingering look as she passes. It often makes her scheme how such a seeming impossibility could be accomplished and nine times out of ten she does manage it some way, and even goes so far as to buy shoes and gloves to match.

We will have to say that Ethel Leginska is the exception. The average women don't simply buy an outfit because it will be good and warm throughout the winter, are nice and cool during the summer, "and will last at least two seasons." She buys it because she wants it and her hats as well. The Ladies' Home Journal puts it about right when it says in an article that makes a plea for the women who pay forty to sixty dollars for her hat.

"It is said to save the head From summer's sun and winter's cold;

It's supposed to ward off sneezing, Neuralgias and frights untold;

But forgive me, gentle stranger, This delusion, likewise snare,

Sally's hat's on Sally Just because she likes it there."

INDIANA STUDY CLUB.

An interesting meeting of the Indiana Study Club was held this afternoon, when Mrs. Eunice Bollinger was hostess to the members at her home on North Broadway, entertaining at the fortnightly study meeting. As roll call responses republics were named and following a brief business meeting the program was given, with historical papers of Mexico.

The opening number was given by Mrs. Lenore Swails, in an interesting account of Juarez and the restored republic of Mexico. A number of important events connected with the rule of Juarez were given with a detailed account of the restoration of the republic form of government, following the notorious reign. The causes of the revolt of the natives was also given and the final steps leading to the abdication of the ruler spoken of. While Juarez is considered the foremost of the native rulers in Mexico, and his rule one of the most important the unrest among the people caused a demand to be made for a republic, which was formed immediately after the abdication.

Mrs. Lou Amy Wright followed with a general discussion of Mexican history and concluding this a pleasantly informal social hour was held.

W. F. M. S.
